“These questions are anything but inconsequential. They are here, they are there. In fact, they’re essential. These (moderate) speed dates skip past flirtation – it’s straight into the big stuff... In an airy room looking out onto the street, it’s clear that we have to look in to look out, and vice versa. Change begins inside of us, and in the spaces between us. We have to speak into the spaces that are open.” - Exeunt Magazine

ABOUT THE SHOW

When was the last time you made time to talk?

Life is hectic, and real human connection feels increasingly rare. Artists Sonia Hughes and Jo Fong champion the power of slowing down and having real conversations in their live art performance, Neither Here Nor There. In what audiences have described as 'inspiring and heartfelt', this experience engages different voices, perspectives and lives to pose the question, 'how can we live together?'.

Join Sonia and Jo for a short walk, followed by conversations designed to make 'a leap of faith' (CCQ Magazine), and surrender to this intimate and refreshing look into the power of communication.

This project has been inspired by research undertaken by Frank Bock and Katye Coe and was originally created for Experimentica Festival.

Neither Here Nor There is commissioned by Chapter and LAUK Diverse Actions and supported by Arts Council of Wales.

THE WAY THE EVENT WORKS

Pre show Set up - minimum 2 hours

Show - duration 1 hour 30 mins

Audiences arrive (capacity 24).

People pick up their tickets from Box Office and are directed to us standing with a placard outside the building (if it's raining we skip this bit or provide umbrellas).

We start outside the building - the event starts with a short walk around the local streets approx. 8/10 minutes. It's about getting through the initial - hellos how are you etc. Slowing down and getting a bit of a feel for the place. Gentle connecting.

A moment when all that chatter that has to happen happens.

Latecomers can help themselves to a drink as we return to the performance space. (It's useful if an usher is available for latecomers, they can welcome them and offer latecomers a drink.)

Jo and Sonia and the audience arrive in the room.

Sound (one of the performers presses play on the track - a bell goes off every 6 minutes and there are some musical interludes).

Coats and bags - help yourselves to a drink / snack.

Audiences then take a seat they are not directed, people can sit anywhere, it's just obvious - we have set up the chairs in relaxed pairs.

Another bell goes off - Jo or Sonia does a six minute solo / intro / monologue.

We hand out cards with questions or instructions on them to the audience and they begin - every 6 minutes there is a shift - and during the music moments we change chairs.

There is another solo moment.

The show ends very fluidly with conversation continuing - in essence there is no end, just the banter of in depth conversation and people trying to make a good end to their conversation. We provide free sheets with credits and these are handed out at the end of the performance.

During the show we prefer the event to be alcohol free i.e. conversations not fuelled by alcohol but for evening performances it's nice to open the bar at the end of the show.

In the past it has taken between 10 and 50 mins for audiences to leave the room.

If we were doing two shows in one evening - there is a changeover to do.

But it's also very relaxed - maybe a last orders call would be useful for the first round of audiences.

A PERFORMANCE FOR A VARIETY OF SPACES

We have previously performed in community centres, galleries, libraries, cafes, art centres, village halls, a vegan barber shop and a chapel. NHNT works particularly well in a festival context it creates a space for audience, volunteers, artists to meet on an equal level and can create connections that thread through and beyond the festival.

Previous Touring includes:

Harstad, Norway. Festspillene i Nord-Norge

Summerhall, Edinburgh.

Photogallery, London. (CAN Festival)

Chinese Community Centre, London.

National Eisteddfod of Wales / Eisteddfod Genedlaethol Cymru, Llanrwst

OTHER LANGUAGES

Currently available in English and Welsh - Jo and Sonia have devised a way for this to happen in any language. Read on to find out more.

Recently this work was re-created in Welsh, hosted by performers Eddie Ladd and Sara McGaughey. We enjoy how this performance serves different languages and further languages that are under threat of disappearing.

Jo and Sonia are, and work together with, female, middle aged, international, provincial artists who then deliver the performance.

Sometimes we bring our own bilingual team or work with recommended local performers.

AMBITIONS FOR NEITHER HERE NOR THERE

We are particularly interested in encouraging more conversations between people who wouldn't ordinarily meet and between people who would not normally go to arts events. We want our audiences to more closely reflect the places we are visiting. We want to mix it up and hear a diversity of voices.

This might mean Jo and Sonia working with a local group or community centre prior to performances and through workshops start to build trust in the ideas and us. We encourage offers or subsidised ticketing which means those with minority backgrounds or where ticket prices are a barrier between would be more able to attend. Similarly, this might mean holding a performance in alternative or community space.

WORKSHOPS

Jo and Sonia are able to provide workshops for adults. They are particularly interested in working with women's groups, East Asian and black communities.

Suggested 2 or 3 hours with refreshments.

The workshop is based on the techniques from the show of talking and listening, some written exercises that create connection.

Structured conversation about place, home, family and a sense of belonging or empowerment.

TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS

We ask each venue to provide:

- Music system and Speakers are required (a cafe sound system is usually sufficient)
- A wire so Jo can plug in her iPad.
- (Jo brings own iPad and Charger to run the sound)
- Light - whatever is there and lifting where possible to a friendly welcoming state - not gloomy
- 26 chairs
- Tables - as many as you have available
- Coat rail and hangers (or if the room has coat hooks enough for 26 people is also fine)
- Kettle / Flasks / Urn
- 26 cups
- 26 glasses
- 2 water jugs
- Fruit bowl
- 3 plates
- 2 tea-spoons
- Knife (for any cake / fruit cutting)
- 10 umbrellas

Jo and Sonia provide:

- Milk
- Napkins
- Sugar
- Coffee
- Tea
- Fruit
- Dates
- Table cloth
- Jo's iPad and charger plus back up
- Show cards
- Free sheets for after the show
- Flyers/posters
- Banner (prop)
- Outdoor banner
- Pull up

If anything on the above list is not possible - just let jo@jofong.com know and she will look into how to bring these items.

One rehearsal / get in day is required.

COSTS

Costs are based the number of performance days and include artist fees, set requirements, admin and marketing support. They do not include travel, accommodation and per diems (at £25 per artist per overnight).

We are able to do two performances in one day
(3 hours between performances - suggested 4pm and 7pm).

Examples

2 shows in one day - £900 plus travel, accommodation and per diems

5 shows in 3 or 4 days - £1500 plus travel, accommodation and per diems

Workshops

A 2 hour workshop with a specific local group can be costed as part of our rehearsal and get-in day.

Local Languages and rehearsals

When working on a translated version a five day residency is recommended.

We are open to different ways of approaching this. We could work with a venue or festival or group of venues or a local tour booker to explore taking the work further afield. There are also royalties to be paid if there are further performances beyond the residency. If you are interested in this approach and would like performances in a local language please discuss with jo@jofong.com.

Appropriate crediting is essential.
